Paige Turner

Investigative Arts Journalist

Paige asks innocent questions with a recorder visibly running. Her journalistic integrity is unmatched. Paige covers the art world for the Times of Tulsa the way other reporters cover city hall: money, power, access, and who benefits when everyone agrees to keep silent.

- Keeps asking Barb Dwyer for access to museum records. Barb keeps asking what the story is about.
- Sue Venir has threatened to quote Paige's own articles back to her in court.
- Calls Reed DeLabel to check dates and catalog references. Reed is delighted when a correction makes it into print.

ACTING TIPS

Curious, direct, quick, socially fearless. Ask questions people wish you would save for email.

YOUR INTRODUCTION / READ THE BOX ALOUD

> I'm Paige Turner. I am covering the gala. I just want to say in advance that absolutely nothing is off the record tonight.

Continue to your private briefing on page 3. Keep the packet facing you.

Behind the portrait

Your stake tonight

Cannot separate protecting a vulnerable source from her need to keep being the reporter who gets the story.

During the investigation

Everyone has something to hide. Your printed account may protect a personal secret. Read your selected box as written; do not invent events, witnesses or evidence.

Conversations to start

- Mingle using the relationships on your introduction page.
- Keep your private branch readings for their announced rounds.

One attending guest committed the murder alone. Follow your printed account during the hearings. If a named guest is absent, speak to someone else.

By now, you should have drawn a secret animal. Memorize it and don't share it with anyone. This animal is YOUR key to knowing whether you are the murderer or innocent tonight. This will tell you which sections of this packet you can read out loud.

The game is afoot

The Meridian Museum has its share of secrets, rumors, and lost paperwork. Sixteen numbered envelopes are hidden around the museum. Their contents may significantly help you tonight. These 3 hints lead to 3 different hiding places. If you find an envelope, bring it to your seat at the table. The guest with the most envelopes will win a special prize. You may investigate together.

1 The house has its own cinema. Inspect the side the audience never sees.

2 A decorative vessel has traded its bouquet for evidence.

3 A green lamp cannot testify, but something near it can.

STOP STOP! Do not turn the page yet.
Wait for the host to announce the next round.

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you. After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

My article had an unsupported sentence. I owed a correction. Grant wanted the source behind the rest. Justin's property folder made his rescue story less flattering than the arts desk expected. I wanted the records with my editor before his announcement. He kept asking for a name. I keep hearing that question now. Somebody outside this room will be frightened when they learn he's dead.

IF MURDERER

My article had an unsupported sentence. Grant's lawyer used it against the rest. Grant wanted my source and offered to leave that person alone if I supplied a name. Justin's property folder made his rescue story less flattering. I wanted the records in print. He wanted somebody he could approach without me there. Somebody outside this room will be frightened when they learn he's dead.

IF INNOCENT

My recorder was in his coat at the cloakroom. He'd kept it after our interview. I searched the pocket and copied the file. The critic got a short export with the identifying part removed. My editor knew the cut and had the untrimmed file. Barb, I know I didn't have permission to search the coat. He didn't have permission to keep my recorder either.

IF MURDERER

He'd kept my recorder in his coat after the interview. I went through the coat at the cloakroom and copied the file. The critic got a short export; my editor kept the original. Then I went to his private place to ask what else he thought he owned. He wasn't there. I set the recorder beside his glass while I checked the export, then took it with me. Barb, yes, I searched a pocket without permission. His lawyer can bill somebody else for that conversation.

IF INNOCENT

That was tonight. His private room. You can hear the manager leaving me with him. I removed that voice from the critic's copy; the editor has it. I'm not giving you a name to pass around the table. Grant already thought a name was something he could bargain for. Sue, if there is another question, ask it. Ask me.

IF MURDERER

The interview was yesterday in the museum office. I cut the employee's voice to protect my source. My editor holds the original. Tonight I searched his coat for the recorder. I still owe the article correction. Sue, I can answer for a sentence I wrote. I will not give you a person's name over dinner. Someone is already afraid enough.

The shared discoveries and reports remain at the Evidence Table.

IF INNOCENT / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I did not kill Grant. The untrimmed opening places our interview at his private table tonight. My editor had that original; I cut the employee's voice from the export. The correction will run. The source's name won't. I also need to ask that person what they want now. I have spent too much of this investigation treating being protected and being useful to me as the same thing.

IF MURDERER / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I killed Grant. The interview was tonight at his private place, while the manager left his glass. The original opening proves it. After Grant returned to the reception I went back, alone, and used poison I'd taken at the preview. I called the interview yesterday's office conversation to make that recording unrelated to tonight. I wanted to protect my source; I chose murder instead. My editor has the original. Someone will have to tell the person who trusted me what I did with their trust.

Every selected suspect gets their final word.
