Dinner Party 2026

INTRODUCTIONS

Justin Tyme

Independent Blogger & Local Truthstorian

Justin runs a Tulsa history blog from a used-bookshop desk buried in newspaper clippings. He tracks old property deeds, vanished music venues, and the names donors would rather leave off the plaque. Ask him about a grand local family and he may reach for a folder instead of a compliment.

- Paige Turner considers Justin useful when she needs Tulsa context and dangerous when he starts telling stories.
- Gives local-history talks for Anne E. Dote. She keeps asking him to finish before the museum closes.
- Has been digging into the museum's early property records. Artie Ficial keeps offering him the official anniversary brochure.

ACTING TIPS

Sociable, stubborn, and easily sidetracked by a good lead. Ask who owned the building before the museum arrived. Treat an old clipping like something worth showing the person beside you.

YOUR INTRODUCTION / READ THE BOX ALOUD

I'm Justin Tyme. I run a local history blog. If your family funded this wing, I'd love to hear about it. I brought the property records.

Continue to your private briefing on page 3. Keep the packet facing you.

Behind the portrait

Your grievance with Grant

Grant fed you several flattering claims for an earlier profile that you later discovered were exaggerated. He threatened to cut off access if you corrected them.

Your other secret

You are preparing a correction that will also make you look embarrassingly credulous.

Conversations to start

- Ask Paige Turner how she corrects a flattering story when its subject objects.
- Ask Artie Ficial how much influence Grant expects over the museum's public image.

If a named guest is absent, speak to someone else. Your printed account may conceal another scandal, even if you are innocent. Stick to it during the hearings.

By now, you should have drawn a secret animal. Memorize it and don't share it with anyone. This animal is YOUR key to knowing whether you are the murderer or innocent tonight. This will tell you which sections of this packet you can read out loud.

The game is afoot

The Meridian Museum has its share of secrets, rumors, and lost paperwork. Sixteen numbered envelopes are hidden around the museum. Their contents may significantly help you tonight. These 3 hints lead to 3 different hiding places. If you find an envelope, bring it to your seat at the table. The guest with the most envelopes will win a special prize. You may investigate together.

- 1 A biography about costly courage conceals a small piece of tonight's puzzle.
- 2 Look inside a cupboard: the evidence has chosen a room with its own door.
- 3 Above the garage door, a document waits for a safe pair of hands.

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you.
After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

Grant fed me a splendid origin story for the museum building. The old deed does not agree with it. My blog printed his version, so the correction makes me look gullible as well as making him look dishonest. He threatened to cut off access if I published. I had already started tracing who owned the lot before his family did.

IF MURDERER

I printed Grant's building story before checking the deed. That was my mistake. The correction would expose his exaggeration and my willingness to believe it. He threatened to end my access to the museum. I had a folder of earlier owners, and he had a plaque that carefully omitted them.

ACT II: OPPORTUNITY

Justin Tyme

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you.
After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

I used the fixed archive-office telephone for the radio call-in from 6:39 to 6:45. I read the old parcel line aloud and corrected Grant's building story. The station kept the whole exchange. Afterward I went back to the gallery with the deed copy. Publishing a correction is easier once you have already said it on the radio.

IF MURDERER

I left a recorded correction with the radio producer and checked the deed copy at the gallery table before the toast. I had taken Grant the earlier clipping in his salon. It still contained his version. I was trying to get the parcel description into one readable paragraph before another donor supplied an anecdote to replace it.

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you.
After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

I copied the deed pages without the usual archive request. The correction concerns who owned the lot before the museum, not whether the museum exists. Grant's clipping put his family at the beginning of the story. The parcel line had earlier owners. I left the clipping flat beside the deed so nobody could say I had misquoted him.

IF MURDERER

The old clipping and deed copy were in an archive sleeve. I had copied pages without filing the request. Grant wanted the correction held while he checked it; I had already checked it against a document older than his family anecdote. He threatened my access. I kept a second copy for the work I would have to do afterward.

The sixteen discoveries and five reports remain at the Evidence Table.

The last word

IF INNOCENT / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I published a credulous profile and copied archive pages without permission. The station's fixed-line parcel discussion accounts for me while the coupe was exposed. The correction was already public before Grant drank. I still owe readers a better account of the building. I did not kill a source to finish one.

IF MURDERER / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

The radio station had a recording. I was at the gallery table, then the salon, carrying the stolen toxin on the clipping cloth. I wiped Grant's coupe before returning to the deed. He could cut off every door I used for research. I decided to close his future instead. My correction was necessary; his murder was my choice.

Every selected suspect gets their final word.
