INTRODUCTIONS

Justin Tyme

Independent Blogger & Local Truthstorian

Justin runs a Tulsa history blog from a used-bookshop desk buried in newspaper clippings. He tracks old property deeds, vanished music venues, and the names donors would rather leave off the plaque. Ask him about a grand local family and he may reach for a folder instead of a compliment.

• Paige Turner considers Justin useful when she needs Tulsa context and dangerous when he starts telling stories.

• Gives local-history talks for Anne E. Dote. She keeps asking him to finish before the museum closes.

• Has been digging into the museum's early property records. Artie Ficial keeps offering him the official anniversary brochure.

ACTING TIPS

Sociable, stubborn, and easily sidetracked by a good lead. Ask who owned the building before the museum arrived. Treat an old clipping like something worth showing the person beside you.

YOUR INTRODUCTION / READ THE BOX ALOUD

> I'm Justin Tyme. I run a local history blog. If your family funded this wing, I'd love to hear about it. I brought the property records.

Tips for a Successful Dinner

What's at Stake

Wants to rescue forgotten people from official history but loves being the man with the better story.

Best Practices

- Everyone, including you, has something to hide, something at stake. But only one guest tonight is guilty of murder.
- Mingle using the relationships on your introduction page. Feel free to improvise in conversations.
- If a named guest is absent, simply speak to someone else. Not everyone made it to the gala tonight.
- By now, you should have drawn a secret animal. Memorize it and don’t share it with anyone. This animal is YOUR key to knowing whether you are the murderer or innocent tonight. This will tell you which sections of this packet you can read out loud.
- When asked to read from this packet, please read the appropriate box as written. Feel free to add your own flair to stay in character.
- Don't let anyone else see what's in your packet!

The Game is Afoot

The Meridian Museum has its share of secrets, rumors, and lost paperwork. Sixteen numbered envelopes are hidden around the museum. Their contents may significantly help you tonight. These 3 hints lead to 3 different hiding places. If you find an envelope, bring it to your seat at the table. The guest with the most envelopes will win a special prize. You may investigate together.

1 A biography about costly courage conceals a small piece of tonight's puzzle.

2 Look inside a cupboard: the evidence has chosen a room with its own door.

Your Answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you. After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

> The Stolen Museum. Great headline. The tenant-trust settlement made it less great. Grant's family story began with a donation; my deed showed a purchase and a missing payment. I left out what happened afterward. He wanted a retraction and confidentiality. I would fix the headline. Anne, you know me. I start with a folder and somehow end up telling it like I was there.

IF MURDERER

> The Stolen Museum. Great headline. The tenant-trust settlement made it less great. Grant could use my omission to dismiss the deed, the missing payment, the whole folder. He wanted the records and confidentiality with the retraction. Anne, you know me. I start with a folder and somehow end up telling it like I was there. He could make the storyteller the reason nobody listened.

IF INNOCENT

I gave counsel the deed and the settlement together. Anne needed a tour version. I circulated the old Velvet Widow clipping too. Its poison story and tonight's inert loan caption disagreed. I told the press desk to keep both. Paige, there's a whole other story about the old owner. I'll spare you. I am finally beginning to suspect the interesting bit isn't always the bit people need.

IF MURDERER

I gave counsel the deed and the settlement together. Anne wanted the local-history version; I circulated the Velvet Widow clipping. Grant wanted my property folder, so I took it to his private place. His glass was waiting. He wasn't. I stayed to write a note, tore it up, and took the folder away. Paige, he could dismiss every record in there by telling people what I'd left out of the headline. I had handed him the best line in his rebuttal.

IF INNOCENT

> The correction changes the former owner's name. It says nothing about treating poison. I left the settlement out of my headline. It's in the property folder now. Paige, take the whole folder. I'm still angry about the tenants. I also know exactly which page made my story less convenient.

IF MURDERER

> The newspaper's correction records neutralization before Grant bought the bottle. Original contents meant a treated, harmless remainder by the preview. The sale and loan descriptions agreed. Paige, the settlement is in the property folder. I am saying the later edition changed the bottle's condition as well as its owner's story.

The shared discoveries and reports remain at the Evidence Table.

The Last Word

Read only when the host calls you. Top three suspects read first. Use your own role's box; keep every other word private.

IF INNOCENT / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I did not kill Grant. The later clipping corrects a name, not the contents. My current-theft headline left out a settlement I knew existed. The public correction and complete folder include it now. Anne, keep the old occupants in your tour. Keep the settlement too. If that takes longer than the dramatic version, we'll start earlier. I want people remembered even when their story doesn't give me a brilliant headline.

IF MURDERER / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I killed Grant. The clipping has no neutralization record; its later correction concerns the earlier owner's name. The actual sale required original contents, and the seller fulfilled it. I took poison at the preview and used Grant's private glass. I invented a treatment in the archive to make the source harmless before tonight. He had the settlement I left out of my headline. I wanted people to remember the history I uncovered. They will remember the thing I invented to conceal a murder. The rest of the folder will have to survive me.

Every selected suspect gets their final word.
