

HOST GUIDE / The Last Acquisition

Your role

Host a museum gala and lead the investigation into Grant Larceny's death. You can play too: the murderer is chosen by a secret memorized animal draw, and this guide reveals no character's private branch.

Object of the game

One attending guest committed the murder alone. Identify the murderer by weighing discoveries, motives, and the three rounds of testimony. Everyone has a scandal; a scandal alone does not prove murder. Every question, answer, hunt hint, ballot, and Coming Clean speech is in each packet. Read only the boxed speech when asked; do not invent factual events.

Party details

October 30, 2026 / 1537 S 74th East Ave, Tulsa, OK 74112. Plan 6:00 arrival to 9:30 finish. The current print edition contains 22 confirmed roles. Every attending character can be the murderer.

Preparation checklist

One week before

- Assign character names and send each guest only their public introduction PDF or JPEG and invitation.
- Ask guests to remember their character names. Nobody needs a character number or a partner. Costume ideas are optional.
- Read this guide and choose who will deliver the investigation announcements. If playing, keep private packet pages and organizer sources unread.
- Choose rooms for the museum labels and print one complete packet per attending guest.

Before guests arrive

- Keep ballot page 11 loose inside; staple the other pages in order. Add a pencil and named place card.
- Print the host name checklist. Put the five reports F1-F5 in order in a host folder.
- Hide Discoveries 1-16 using page 8. Keep a shared display area for opened evidence.
- Prepare Player Bowl A and matching Murderer Bowl B using all 30 familiar animals, plus one closed return box.
- Lower the music for questioning. Guests may sit anywhere; no partner assignment is needed.

Materials and copy counts

Item	Copies / purpose
Complete twelve-page packet	One per attending guest; questions, records, ballot and Coming Clean included
Host guide and name checklist	One each
Public introduction PDF or JPEG	One sent to each guest before the party
F1-F5 investigation reports	Seven pages in five reports; read and display every page
Discoveries 1-16	Sixteen full-page records; fold each page for its numbered envelope
Animal draw cards	Two matching sets of 30 animals
Containers	Bowl A, matching Bowl B, closed return box
Place cards, signs, exhibits, awards	One set as needed
Pencils	One per guest; spares

Printing

Single-sided, Actual size / 100%. Staple all except loose ballot page 11. No font installation is needed. Use a non-playing helper if your printer exposes private text. No player question catalog, evidence-letter cards or finale envelopes are required.

Memorized animal assignment

At arrival

- Each guest draws one animal from Bowl A, reads silently, memorizes it, folds the slip and immediately returns it to the closed box. Nobody keeps or shows a slip.
- Draw only from Bowl A. Never put returned slips back into A during arrivals.
- When all expected guests have drawn, remove from matching Bowl B every unused animal left in A. B now contains exactly the animals memorized by attending guests.
- There is no optional bowl and no name-to-animal list. Keep B separate from the closed return box.

Check memory before selection

Before drawing from B, ask every guest to confirm silently that they remember their animal. Resolve any uncertainty now. If nobody can reconstruct a forgotten animal, repeat the assignment for everyone before selecting a culprit. Never redraw between rounds.

Before Act I: Motive

Before Act I: Motive, ask everyone to keep a blank face. Draw one animal from Bowl B and announce it twice. Say: If this matches your memorized animal, use IF MURDERER in all three acts and Coming Clean; otherwise use IF INNOCENT. Keep your animal secret. Keep the selected animal in the host folder. Do not identify its owner.

Late arrivals

A guest arriving after selection may draw an unused A animal and join as innocent: that animal was excluded from B. Before selection, simply include their draw in the normal attendance process.

Print and assemble complete packets

Safe covers on the seats

- Print one named twelve-page SECRET packet per attending guest, single-sided at 100%. The ornate first page contains only the portrait and name: packets may face up on assigned seats.
- Leave ballot page 11 loose inside. Staple the other pages in order. A helper can assemble private pages face down.
- Pages 1–3: cover, public orientation and private briefing. Page 4: hunt. Pages 5–6: Motive. Pages 7–8: Opportunity. Pages 9–10: Method. Page 11: ballot. Page 12: Coming Clean.
- Each act has one question page followed by its answer page. Stop signs mark the end of each section.

Combined printing

Use the confirmed 22-guest combined file (03A) for the current roster; its questions omit absent characters. Each consecutive twelve-page block belongs to one character. Follow its safe cover names. The individual master files and 03 contain all thirty roles for future roster changes.

Host folder

Stage F1–F2 before Motive, F3 before Opportunity, F4–F5 before Method. Put numbered Discoveries 1–16 in separate envelopes, using the placement list on page 8. Keep the spoiler bible closed if you are playing.

House hunt / sixteen envelopes

Number the envelopes 1-16 and use these exact hiding places. Each packet has three cryptic hints. Put the garage-door clue where a helper can safely hand it down; guests must not climb.

- | | |
|----|---------------------------------|
| 1 | behind the television |
| 2 | inside the Bonhoeffer biography |
| 3 | under a metal chair |
| 4 | on top of a mirror |
| 5 | under a musical keyboard |
| 6 | under a trophy |
| 7 | inside a vase |
| 8 | inside a cupboard |
| 9 | behind a painting |
| 10 | on top of a map of Barcelona |
| 11 | behind red curtains |
| 12 | near a green lamp |
| 13 | above the garage door |
| 14 | inside a Bible |
| 15 | behind a blue cushion |
| 16 | inside the freezer |

Guests keep found envelopes at their seats. Open each find and read its contents aloud; display the papers together after reading. At the end of the hunt, count all 16 discoveries. Fetch any missing envelopes and share their contents before the investigation. Count envelopes per finder and award Curator's Eye to the guest with the most. A missing clue never blocks the case.

Evening agenda

6:00–6:20	Arrival / memorize and return animals
6:20–6:35	Introductions / pages 2–3
6:35–7:00	Hunt / page 4; share all 16 discoveries

9:00–9:20	Coming Clean / page 12
9:20–9:30	Awards / dessert / debrief

Keep the group moving

These are planning allowances, not measured performance times. Read one question and one answer per guest per round. With 30 guests, avoid extra speeches until everyone has answered. Pause for a short discussion after each round.

Introductions and hunt

Say aloud

Welcome to the Meridian Museum gala. Open your orientation and briefing on pages 2–3. When called, introduce yourself by reading the introduction box. Keep private pages facing you.

Introductions

- Hear each guest once. They may use their character's voice or simply read.
- Allow mingling with the private conversation prompts. An absent target never blocks play.
- Then announce: Open HUNT FOR CLUES, page 4. Sixteen numbered envelopes are hidden. Follow your three hints; you may help one another. Bring finds to your seat, open them and read the discovery aloud.

Before the death

- Count and display all 16 discoveries. Fetch any missed envelope. Keep documents available for everyone to reread. Credit each envelope once to its finder. If guests find it together, let them name one finder before opening. For a prize tie, award jointly; do not hide evidence again.
- Gather everyone where they can hear. Turn down the music. Announce Grant's death, select and announce the murderer animal using page 6 of this guide, then begin Motive.
- Read only the current section. Coming Clean opens after every ballot is locked.

ACT I: MOTIVE

Release and announce

First select and announce the murderer animal using page 6 of this guide. Keep its owner secret. Then read and display F1-F2. Say: Open Motive. Questions are on page 5; answers on page 6. Use IF MURDERER if the animal matches yours, otherwise IF INNOCENT. Read only the bordered words.

Run the question chain

- Choose an attending guest. Ask the printed question beside their name.
- After answering, that guest chooses an unheard attending guest from the question page. Skip absent names.
- Tick the speaker on the host roster. Every attending guest answers once, including the person who started.
- If the chain stalls, name an unheard guest and ask their printed question. No seating order or partners are needed.
- When all have spoken, allow a short discussion and repeats. Keep the documents visible. Do not supply an interpretation of the evidence.

Close the act

Tell everyone to stop at the red sign. Keep the same selected animal and the same innocent/murderer branch for the remaining acts. Never redraw between rounds.

ACT II: OPPORTUNITY

Release and announce

Read and display F3. Say: Open Opportunity. The questions are on page 7; your answer is on page 8. Choose by character name. Read only the words inside your speaking box.

Run the question chain

- Choose an attending guest. Ask the printed question beside their name.
- After answering, that guest chooses an unheard attending guest from the question page. Skip absent names.
- Tick the speaker on the host roster. Every attending guest answers once, including the person who started.
- If the chain stalls, name an unheard guest and ask their printed question. No seating order or partners are needed.
- When all have spoken, allow a short discussion and repeats. Keep the documents visible. Do not supply an interpretation of the evidence.

Close the act

Tell everyone to stop at the red sign. Announce the next section only when the room is ready.

ACT III: METHOD

Release and announce

Read and display F4-F5. Say: Open Method. The questions are on page 9; your answer is on page 10. Choose by character name. Read only the words inside your speaking box.

Run the question chain

- Choose an attending guest. Ask the printed question beside their name.
- After answering, that guest chooses an unheard attending guest from the question page. Skip absent names.
- Tick the speaker on the host roster. Every attending guest answers once, including the person who started.
- If the chain stalls, name an unheard guest and ask their printed question. No seating order or partners are needed.
- When all have spoken, allow a short discussion and repeats. Keep the documents visible. Do not supply an interpretation of the evidence.

Close the act

Tell everyone to stop at the red sign. Announce the next section only when the room is ready.

Voting and Coming Clean

Say: Open ACCUSATIONS, page 11. Choose one attending guest and explain your strongest evidence. Fold and hand in only the loose ballot. Keep your packet. No votes change once all ballots are collected.

Collect and lock ballots

- Complete loose page 11 privately: suspect, motive, evidence and awards. The murderer votes too. Fold writing inward and hand over only the ballot. Keep the packet for Coming Clean.
- Collect one ballot per attending guest. Use the checklist's tally page; confirm collected equals attending before any Coming Clean page opens. No votes change.
- Give every attending character a total, including zero. Select the three highest totals among attendees. Break ties alphabetically by full character name. Zero-vote ties fill remaining places, so three guests still resolve their secrets after a unanimous vote.
- Read the three names in descending vote order. Each reads only their IF INNOCENT or IF MURDERER Coming Clean box on page 12. Hear all three, even if the first confesses.

If nobody confesses

Say: The murderer is not among our three suspects. Whoever memorized [selected animal], please stand and read your IF MURDERER Coming Clean confession. Do not call the animal if one of the three already confessed.

Award and finish

Master Sleuth: an innocent guest who names the murderer and supports the accusation with a coherent motive and evidence. Share equally strong detective awards. Escaped Justice: murderer outside the top three. Ballot votes decide Best Actor and Best Costume; discovery tally decides Curator's Eye.

Quick round cues

Round cues

Introductions	Pages 2–3 / each introduction box / private social prompts
Hunt	Page 4 / retrieve and share all sixteen discoveries
Motive	F1–F2 / questions 5, answer 6 / hear everyone once
Select	Before Motive / exclude unused A animals from B / announce twice; keep the same branch for all acts
Opportunity	F3 / questions 7, answer 8 / hear everyone once
Method	F4–F5, both pages of each / questions 9–10
Accusations	Loose page 11 / collect every ballot / lock all votes
Coming Clean	Page 12 / hear all top three / animal fallback only if none confesses

Troubleshooting and final disclosures

If something goes wrong

- Missing discovery: fetch it before investigation. A guest who cannot search can read finds or ask a helper to follow their hints.
- Forgotten animal: pause. Before selection, resolve memory or repeat the draw for everyone. After selection, never redraw. A non-playing helper can privately compare the remembered animals with the returned set and tell the sole forgetful guest the missing animal, without keeping a name-to-animal list or telling the playing host. If more than one guest is unsure, pause the scored game rather than guess branches.
- Absent guest: skip their name; exclude their unused animal from B. A late arrival after selection joins as innocent.
- Repeated target or stalled chain: ask an unheard attending guest using the printed questions. Tick every speaker on the roster.
- Wrong box or reading ahead: stop without asking which branch they meant to use. Let the guest privately check their animal. Resume with their correct current-round box. If a confession page was exposed, finish for the stories and awards; do not claim a blind mystery result.
- Missing packet page: replace the complete named packet, never a standalone branch.

Optional last disclosures

After the murderer has confessed, invite non-finalists to read their innocent Coming Clean if they wish. These disclosures close personal scandals; they do not add evidence required to solve the murder.
