Anya Tique

Founding Curator Emerita

Anya remembers when the museum was two rooms and an argument. Anya helped build the Meridian's collection when the museum had more ambition than money and fewer committees than fire extinguishers.

- Hired Artie Ficial early in his career.
- Trusts Chip Patina and Anne E. Dote.
- Has known Tess Tament since Tess was a child.

ACTING TIPS

Imperious, funny, observant, utterly unimpressed by status. Age gives you permission to say what everyone else edits.

YOUR INTRODUCTION / READ THE BOX ALOUD

> I'm Anya Tique. I helped build this museum. Tonight I reserve the right to judge the lighting and everyone in it.

Continue to your private briefing on page 3. Keep the packet facing you.

Behind the portrait

Your stake tonight

Losing authority feels like disappearing. Keeps keys and memories because nobody consults her anymore.

During the investigation

Keep your account private until each round. Your printed answers establish what happened. You can react in your own style, but do not invent a new event, witness, or alibi.

Conversations to start

- Mingle using the relationships on your introduction page.
- Keep your private branch readings for their announced rounds.

One attending guest committed the murder alone. Follow your printed account during the hearings. If a named guest is absent, speak to someone else.

By now, you should have drawn a secret animal. Memorize it and don't share it with anyone. This animal is YOUR key to knowing whether you are the murderer or innocent tonight. This will tell you which sections of this packet you can read out loud.

The game is afoot

The Meridian Museum has its share of secrets, rumors, and lost paperwork. Sixteen numbered envelopes are hidden around the museum. Their contents may significantly help you tonight. These 3 hints lead to 3 different hiding places. If you find an envelope, bring it to your seat at the table. The guest with the most envelopes will win a special prize. You may investigate together.

1 Where fingers conduct a row of musical keys, a clue waits underneath.

2 Behind a crimson curtain, the museum has misplaced a document.

3 The clue has chosen the place where ice cream refuses to melt.

STOP STOP! Do not turn the page yet.
Wait for the host to announce the next round.

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you. After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

I wrote the old memo permitting lender descriptions while papers caught up. I wouldn't recommend it now. Grant wanted to call it a precedent for his gift. I took it out of the display file. People ask me to attend anniversaries, stand by the founding plaque, and remember something charming. He had found the one memory he could use. I was rather less charming about that.

IF MURDERER

My old memo permitted lender descriptions before the papers caught up. Grant had my signature and wanted it as precedent for his gift. I took it out of the display file. People ask me to stand by the founding plaque and remember something charming. He had found the memory I was ashamed of, and he meant to use it to buy the rest of the museum.

IF INNOCENT

I took the founding memo from the display papers and returned it to the preparation cupboard after the preview. Used my old spare key. The bottle was put away inside. I saw it and left it closed. I hadn't asked permission. Artie, you can remind me I no longer run the place. People have been reminding me for years. Sometimes I hear them.

IF MURDERER

I took the founding memo from the display papers. After the preview I went to put it in the preparation cupboard. I still had my spare key. Then I went to Grant's place to leave him the memo instead. He wasn't there; the glass was. I didn't leave the memo. I stood there reading my own name on it. Artie, I know I no longer run the place. You needn't tell me again tonight.

Your answer

Read only the bordered words when asked. Keep your packet facing you. After answering, ask an unheard guest their question from the previous page.

IF INNOCENT

> Staff tried my spare after he died. It still works. I went in for the memo, saw the bottle, and left it closed. You have my old policy beside the one that replaced it. I remember why I wrote mine. We had lenders bringing things through the door and no money to tell them to wait. Artie, I kept that key when I left. I could come back whenever I pleased. Tonight I did. Must I hand over every part of this place before you'll stop asking?

IF MURDERER

> The lock was changed. My spare wouldn't open it; I left the memo in intake's tray. The bottle was behind the current lock. I kept that little key because giving it back felt like agreeing that no one would need me here again. Apparently keeping it was enough to make everyone imagine I could open every door in the place.

The shared discoveries and reports remain at the Evidence Table.

The last word

Read only when the host calls you. Top three suspects read first. Use your own role's box; keep every other word private.

IF INNOCENT / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

I did not kill Grant. My key worked, and I used it without asking. My withdrawn policy is still in the file beside the later replacement. I hid the part of our history that embarrassed me. Artie, here is the spare. I would like an invitation to the next board discussion, if there is one. I would rather be asked to come than let myself in.

IF MURDERER / READ ALOUD WHEN CALLED

The key works. I used it when I returned the memo after the preview. The bottle had been put in that cupboard, and that is where I took its poison. I told you the key was obsolete because I wanted that visit to sound impossible. Later I used the poison in Grant's waiting glass. A display memo was an excuse to enter; it was not what I went back for. I wanted the institution I founded back. I wanted this place to need me again. It will remember me now, and I have no right to ask how.

Every selected suspect gets their final word.
