

HOST GUIDE / The Last Acquisition

Your role

Host a museum gala and lead the investigation into Grant Larceny's death. You can play too: the murderer is chosen by a secret memorized animal draw, and this guide reveals no character's private branch.

Object of the game

Before Coming Clean, identify the murderer and connect their motive with the salon, cabinet key and linen evidence. Guests can read every question and answer directly from their own packet; acting is optional.

Party details

October 30, 2026 / 1537 S 74th East Ave, Tulsa, OK 74112. Plan 6:00 arrival to 9:30 finish. Assign the first 15 roles before adding more guests. Every attending character can be the murderer.

Preparation checklist

One week before

- Assign character names and send each guest only their public introduction PDF or PNG and invitation.
- Ask guests to remember their character names. Nobody needs a character number or a partner. Costume ideas are optional.
- Read this guide and choose who will deliver the investigation announcements. If playing, keep private packet pages and organizer sources unread.
- Choose rooms for the museum labels and print one complete packet per attending guest.

Before guests arrive

- Keep ballot page 13 loose inside; staple the other pages in order. Add a pencil and named place card.
- Print the host name checklist. Put the five reports F1-F5 in order in a host folder.
- Hide Discoveries 1-16 using page 8. Set an Evidence Table.
- Prepare Player Bowl A and matching Murderer Bowl B using all 30 familiar animals, plus one closed return box.
- Lower the music for questioning. Guests may sit anywhere; no partner assignment is needed.

Memorized animal assignment

At arrival

- Each guest draws one animal from Bowl A, reads silently, memorizes it, folds the slip and immediately returns it to the closed box. Nobody keeps or shows a slip.
- Draw only from Bowl A. Never put returned slips back into A during arrivals.
- When all expected guests have drawn, remove from matching Bowl B every unused animal left in A. B now contains exactly the animals memorized by attending guests.
- There is no optional bowl and no name-to-animal list. Keep B separate from the closed return box.

After Act I

Ask everyone to keep a blank face. Draw one animal from Bowl B and announce it twice. The guest who memorized it uses IF MURDERER; everyone else uses IF INNOCENT. Keep the selected animal in the host folder for the Coming Clean fallback. Do not identify its owner now.

Late arrivals

A guest arriving after selection may draw an unused A animal and join as innocent: that animal was excluded from B. Before selection, simply include their draw in the normal attendance process.

Print and assemble complete packets

One packet per guest

- Print one fourteen-page named SECRET packet, single-sided and face down. Leave ballot page 13 loose inside; staple all other pages at the upper left in order.
- Page 1: background. Pages 2–3: notes grids. Pages 4–6: Motive. Pages 7–9: Opportunity. Pages 10–12: Method. Page 13: loose ballot. Page 14: Coming Clean.
- Each round has two question pages followed by one answer page. All packets include every target name and the grouped questions.
- No cutting or selecting letter cards. No shared question catalog. No separately sealed finale. The final page stays unread until the host calls it.

Combined printing

If using the combined file, each consecutive fourteen-page block is one character's complete packet. Follow the names on the cover and the public assembly sheet. Never distribute the combined file to guests.

Host folder

F1–F2 before Motive; F3 before Opportunity; F4–F5 before Method. Keep staged reports separate from the sixteen hidden discoveries.

When a clue is found

Ask the finder to bring it to the Evidence Table and read it to nearby guests. Record finds for Curator's Eye. Missing discoveries do not delay the guided investigation.

Keep the group moving

These are planning allowances, not measured performance times. Read one question and one answer per guest per round. With 30 guests, avoid extra speeches until everyone has answered. Pause for a short discussion after each round.

Act I / Welcome and gossip

Say aloud

Welcome to the Meridian Museum gala. Introduce yourself by your character name, then open only Private background. Your three social tasks are invitations to chat. If a named guest is absent, discuss that subject with anyone. Bring discoveries to the Evidence Table.

Run Act I

- Invite each guest to give their character name and role. Their public introduction is enough.
- Allow mingling, social tasks and discovery hunting. No improvisation or task completion is required to solve the murder.
- Ask finders to share the actual document or photograph they found and award one discovery point.
- Near the end, gather everyone, turn down the music and announce Grant's death. Select and announce the murderer animal using page 6.
- Say: Read only the current round. Your final Coming Clean page is for after voting.

Investigation / Motive

Release and announce

Read F1 / Toxicology and F2 / Grant's unfinished business aloud and display the complete report. Say: Open Motive. Questions are on pages 4-5; your answer is on page 6. Choose by character name, not a number. Tick attending names on notes pages 2-3. Leave other columns blank until you hear the facts.

Question chain

- Choose a starting guest. They pick someone who has not answered yet from an ASK row in their packet and read that row's question.
- The named guest reads the appropriate answer box on their Motive answer page, keeping the label private. Several names share a question, but their answers are different.
- That guest becomes the next asker and chooses another unanswered person by name. No seating order or partner assignment.
- Tick each respondent's name on the checklist. The starting guest must answer too; have the final respondent ask them if needed. Say each respondent's full name so everyone can find their notes row. Keep reports visible; repeat a missed answer on request.
- Ignore absent names. If someone chooses a guest already heard, quietly offer an unanswered name from the same question pages.
- When everyone has answered once, allow up to three brief suspicions. A guest can ask a printed question again; its target repeats the current-round answer. Then move to Opportunity.

If a guest needs help

Pause for a slow reader; repeat the question. Only a non-playing helper may read a selected private box for someone. That helper must keep the branch private and cannot vote. Method includes the entire preparation record.

Investigation / Opportunity

Release and announce

Read F3 / Salon timeline and steward statement aloud and display the complete report. Say: Open Opportunity. Questions are on pages 7-8; your answer is on page 9. Choose by character name, not a number.

Investigation / Method

Release and announce

Read F4 / Cabinet audit and F5 / Fiber comparison aloud and display the complete report. Say: Open Method. Questions are on pages 10–11; your answer is on page 12. Choose by character name, not a number. Read your entire box, including all three preparation-record lines. Keep the IF heading private.

Question chain

- Choose a starting guest. They pick someone who has not answered yet from an ASK row in their packet and read that row's question.
- The named guest reads the appropriate answer box on their Method answer page, keeping the label private. Several names share a question, but their answers are different.
- That guest becomes the next asker and chooses another unanswered person by name. No seating order or partner assignment.
- Tick each respondent's name on the checklist. The starting guest must answer too; have the final respondent ask them if needed. Say each respondent's full name so everyone can find their notes row. Keep reports visible; repeat a missed answer on request.

Voting and Coming Clean

Collect and lock ballots

- Complete loose page 13 privately: suspect, motive, evidence and awards. The murderer votes too. Fold writing inward; hand over only the ballot. Keep the packet for Coming Clean.
- Collect one ballot per attending guest. Use the checklist's tally page; confirm collected equals attending before any Coming Clean page opens. No votes change.
- Give every attending character a total, including zero. Select the three highest totals among attendees. Break ties alphabetically by full character name. Zero-vote ties fill remaining places, so three guests still resolve their secrets after a unanimous vote.
- Read the three names aloud in descending vote order. Call each one to read only their IF INNOCENT or IF MURDERER Coming Clean box on page 14. All three get their statement, even if a confession is heard early.

If nobody confesses

Say: The murderer is not among our three suspects. Whoever memorized [selected animal], please stand and read your IF MURDERER Coming Clean confession. Do not call the animal if one of the three already confessed.

Award and finish

Master Sleuth: an innocent guest with the correct murderer, motive and coherent salon/key/linen evidence. Share equally strong detective awards. Escaped Justice: murderer outside the top three. Use ballot votes for Best Actor and Best Costume; discovery tally for Curator's Eye. Then debrief over dessert.

Quick cues and troubleshooting

Welcome	Introductions / private background / social tasks / discoveries
Select	Memorize and return / exclude unused A from B / announce animal
Motive	F1-F2 / pages 4-6 / named question chain / tick everyone
Opportunity	F3 / pages 7-9 / named question chain / tick everyone
Method	F4-F5 / pages 10-12 / answer plus records / tick everyone
Vote	Discuss / page 13 / collect every ballot / no changes
Coming Clean	Page 14 / top three / animal fallback only if no confession
Finish	Awards / dessert / debrief

Recovery

- Forgotten animal before selection: restart the draw for everyone. No identity list and no guessing.
- Forgotten animal after selection: pause; never guess the murderer. Restart assignments only if all guests can do so, otherwise postpone scoring.
- Absent guest: skip their name. Remove their unused animal from B before selection.
- Duplicate target: offer an unanswered name. If the chain loses track, the host may ask an unanswered guest directly from the same printed group questions.
- Reading ahead: stop before Coming Clean is read aloud. Return to the current round; page 14 opens only after ballots are collected.
- Missing packet page: replace the complete named packet. Do not hand a guest a standalone branch.
