

When the bottle was accessible

Recovered bottle / photographed after the tour

6:20 / room opens	Bottle full; original paper seal intact
6:28 / room closes	Bottle empty; cupboard locked
Other poison objects	No other bottles brought out or given to guests

The bottle was kept locked away before the tour. It was put on the visitor-side shelf when the room opened and locked away again at closing. Nobody obtained it outside those eight minutes. The laboratory matched material remaining in the bottle to residue inside Grant's glass.

Two different ways to approach preparation

WEST / return counter

Papers pass through a small slot

EAST / visitor doorway

Guests can enter and reach the shelf

The west return counter is outside a solid wall. Its small slot passes papers and support sleeves, not people. Staff did not pass the bottle or its contents through it. The east doorway is the only guest entrance to the shelves.
