

Canonical case / organizer only

All gala guests were invited to the preparation walkthrough. The preparation room was open to them from 6:20 to 6:28; the Donor Salon service table was unattended while the glass was uncovered. No role requires specialist credentials to commit the crime.

Documents establish access and object custody. Scripted testimony supplies personal actions. Laboratory comparison is fictional case evidence, not proof that any real chemical can be uniquely traced to one bottle. No dosage or preparation is specified.

Source sample

The only acquired poison bottle was sealed and full when the preparation room opened at 6:20. It was empty when the room was locked at 6:28. It was unavailable before opening and after closure. The murderer personally took its contents; no accomplice or separate poison source exists in this fictional case.

Poisoned vessel

The glass was inside intact blue protective wrapping under staff watch until 6:40. Its inside was accessible until staff covered and sealed it at 6:44. The cover stayed sealed until the watched 6:46 pour, followed by the 6:49 toast. The same glass was used throughout; the shared punch was not poisoned.

Discovery resolutions

1. Artie faced forced resignation; unsigned terms explain his grievance, not guilt.
2. The missing export file supports the ownership dispute; an exhibition label cannot supply it.
3. Dada wrote the warning about appropriated work; it is not a poison instruction.
4. The printed program establishes plans, not any guest's location.
5. The mount defect triggered a real safety closure; Chip also concealed a separate date change.
6. Sue softened an opinion but retained this original.
7. Elon was the anonymous buyer; Hugh concealed the route.
8. Vincent used buybacks to hide his early work.
9. Anne organized a petition against the education cuts.
10. Grant ordered the camera disconnection; Barb complied.
11. Anya accepted an incomplete file in 1989.
12. Grant appropriated Dada's performance concept.
13. Grant demanded the original poison contents for The Art of Murder. Eleanor Vale's 1891 case is fictional.
14. The conservator objected. One bottle was accessible during the tour; Evidence 4 repeats the inspection schedule.
15. The real safety closure changed the program, not the private service.
16. The service docket separates the shared punch from Grant's private glass.

Artie Ficial

Innocent Coming Clean

The rival museum is real. I was leaving, and I let Grant think I might still accept his terms because I wanted the board to see what he demanded. My conversation with the chair lasted across the full uncovered-glass period on the fixed boardroom phone. I concealed a career move, not a trip to his glass. Tomorrow I will submit my resignation on my own stationery.

Murderer Coming Clean

I murdered Grant. During the preparation walkthrough I took cyanide from the open room and hid it in my pocket square. While the glass was uncovered, I brought his corrected speech cards to the Salon and wiped the solution inside his glass. The glass cover and the pour finished the service exactly as planned. He wanted my resignation. I gave him a farewell toast instead.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Artie's live exchange on a fixed boardroom speakerphone spans the full uncovered-glass period; the caller's requested edits tie the conversation to live participation, not a recording. The fixed line is in another room.

Claire O'Scuro

Innocent Coming Clean

I concealed an independent review because Grant wanted it withdrawn. The board will receive it now. My sole approach to the service station ended with the glass still inside intact blue plastic wrapping, under the steward's eye. My hidden folder and my argument were real. Neither reached the inside of his glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and carried it in the label cloth. While the glass was uncovered, I approached Grant with the revised provenance label and applied the solution inside his glass beside the folder. He drank after the glass cover was sealed and reopened for service. I preserved the review and destroyed the man suppressing it. That was murder, not curatorial independence.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Hugh Bidder

Innocent Coming Clean

I hid a failure of due diligence, and clients deserve the corrected file. But I first entered at 6:29, after the preparation room was locked with its bottle already empty. I could not personally acquire that sample. My envelope offered a settlement. Grant's talent was making a legitimate dispute sound like extortion with better stationery.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide from the preparation shelves and hid it in my polishing cloth. While the glass was uncovered, the settlement envelope gave me a reason to stand over Grant's glass. I applied the solution inside it while arranging the papers. The pitcher stayed clean. I killed him over the ruin he threatened, then hoped everyone would blame the forged certificate.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Hugh's staff-issued entrance receipt establishes his first arrival after the preparation room closes. The innocent branch explicitly rules out an earlier entry.

Monet Bags

Innocent Coming Clean

I will reverse the transfer and report it. It was unauthorized bookkeeping, and Grant's proposed expenses made the pressure worse. My only approach to his service station ended with the glass's sealed blue wrapping still intact. I could argue over the schedule beside a guarded package. I could not contaminate the interior through that sealed wrapping.

Murderer Coming Clean

I removed cyanide during the walkthrough and carried it in the pen cloth. While the glass was uncovered I laid the expense schedule beside Grant's glass and coated the inside while he inspected the figures. The staff poured from a clean pitcher into my contaminated glass. I balanced nothing. I murdered the man threatening to make me answer for his accounts.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Chip Patina

Innocent Coming Clean

I falsified a date, and I will correct it even if the insurer makes a spectacle of me. The panel treatment occupied both hands in sealed glove ports for the whole preparation-room opening. I could not remove the poison during that period. My later cloth held water. I was protecting an object and concealing a professional mistake. Grant deserved an honest report, however badly he behaved.

Murderer Coming Clean

The treatment box was my demonstration, not my alibi. I left it with my assistant, took cyanide during the walkthrough, and hid it in treatment linen. While the glass was uncovered I approached Grant's service table as if removing a mark, then coated the inside of his glass. I knew what that solution could do. After years of stabilizing damage, I deliberately caused it.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Both hands remained in sealed treatment-box glove ports during the entire preparation access period; an assistant outside passed tools and checked the pressure seal. The poison bottle was elsewhere.

Dada DiCapo

Innocent Coming Clean

The warning was mine, and I want it returned to my portfolio instead of the police file. I stayed on the pedestal, answering the stage manager's live prompts throughout the uncovered-glass period. Grant stole a concept. I responded with a threat-shaped piece of paper and a performance. Neither put cyanide in his glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I stole the cyanide during the preparation walkthrough and carried it in my performance cloth. While the glass was uncovered I approached Grant about the credits and coated his glass. I left the cue track playing without me, then returned to the stage. My warning had begun as art-world provocation. I made its implication literal, and there is no artistic exemption for murder.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Dada performs continuously on a fixed pedestal across the full uncovered-glass period, with a stage manager answering spoken prompts; it is a live performance rather than a video loop.

Vincent Van Faux

Innocent Coming Clean

I offered to buy my early work back and concealed earlier buybacks because I was ashamed of it. I will let the records show those purchases. My sole service-station visit involved a glass still sealed in its blue plastic wrapping. The steward kept it guarded when I took my sketch away. My vanity was on display. My hands never had access to the glass interior.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the preparation tour and carried it in my rag. While the glass was uncovered I spread the replacement sketch beside Grant's glass and wiped the solution inside the glass. The staff sealed it and later poured the clean drink. I wanted control of my own work so badly that I took control of his last act. I killed him.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Sue Venir

Innocent Coming Clean

I retained both opinions and let Grant believe the softer one had replaced the original. That was a professional compromise I intend to correct. My entire preparation visit stayed outside the west return barrier. The source shelves were on the other side. I could return an annex there; I could not remove the murder sample.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and concealed it in my spectacles cloth. I collected the unsigned signature page from the secretary's desk and brought it to Grant's open glass while the glass was uncovered. I coated its inside while he read, then left him to his private service. The lab found poison on the glass because that is where I put it. I cannot draft a qualification that excuses murder.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete single preparation contact stays outside the fixed west return barrier; only east visitor access reaches the sole source. No revisit or transfer is left unaccounted for.

Dr. Art E. Fact

Innocent Coming Clean

One inference in my article needed correction. I had overstated it, and I will publish that correction. I waited for the original's RECEIVED embossing before my sole service-station visit. The clerk's seal was first used after the glass cover closed. My visit could embarrass Grant, but it could not reach the exposed cup.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took the poison during the tour and hid it in my handling cloth. While the glass was uncovered I approached Grant with my citations and applied cyanide inside his glass. The lab's glass finding describes my action, not an accident in catering. I protected my authority by committing the crime he could never have accused me of truthfully before tonight.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Tess Tament

Innocent Coming Clean

The trustees' revolt was mine. I wanted Grant to lose control of the foundation, and I will still fight that amendment. But I entered at 6:31, after the only poison bottle was locked away empty. My receipt records an arrival, not a flattering photograph taken later. I couldn't acquire that sample. I am entirely capable of taking his money away. Killing him was never part of the campaign.

Murderer Coming Clean

I came early, took cyanide in the preparation room, and carried it in my little bottle. At the service table I used it inside Grant's glass while laying down the trustees' objection. I approached while the glass was uncovered. Staff sealed the cover afterward. I let the staff pour and watched him toast the foundation he was stealing. I was the murderer, beautifully dressed.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Tess entered the museum for the first time at 6:31 after the preparation room was locked at 6:28; her entrance receipt is a staff-issued arrival record, not a photo timestamp. No guest access beforehand.

Barb Dwyer

Innocent Coming Clean

I signed an order I should have challenged. The technician disconnected the camera while I handled the gate. I also spent the entire 6:20–6:28 opening manually admitting the setup queue at the north gate with my assistant. I could not acquire cyanide then. I will answer for the camera. Grant's signature does not remove my responsibility, but it does establish whose privacy he was buying.

Murderer Coming Clean

I left the gate with my assistant and removed cyanide during the walkthrough. While the glass was uncovered I used a security inspection to approach Grant's glass and applied the solution with the cloth. The camera was already disconnected on his own order. I then returned to my radio. I used the failure he demanded to commit the murder he never expected.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Barb manually admits the setup queue at the north turnstile continuously throughout the sample access period; the staff assistant checks each pass alongside her.

Paige Turner

Innocent Coming Clean

I protected the source and concealed the proof's weak paragraph until counsel forced the correction. Both decisions deserve an explanation. I waited for the original's RECEIVED seal before my only service visit. Its first use followed the sealed glass cover. My account involved an injunction and an awkward correction, not access to Grant's uncovered glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I acquired cyanide during the walkthrough and hid it in the cloth around my recorder. While the glass was uncovered I brought Grant the working carbon of my revised proof. He demanded my source's name and asked me to stop recording. I turned the recorder off and applied the solution inside his glass beside the paper. Staff sealed the glass cover and later poured from a clean pitcher. I called it protecting a source. I murdered him, and no revision makes that anything else.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Frank Lloyd Wrong

Innocent Coming Clean

The temporary rig was unacceptable, and my signature makes that my responsibility. During the service period I was tethered above the gallery, with the rigger controlling my descent until after the cover was sealed. I couldn't reach the glass. Grant's death does not improve the engineering. We will close the rig until it is rebuilt properly.

Murderer Coming Clean

I removed cyanide during the tour and concealed it in the layout cloth. I had come down from the gantry before the glass was unwrapped. The load diagram brought me to Grant's table, where I coated the inside of his uncovered glass. He demanded an impossible design, and I chose an entirely possible murder. The glass cover concealed the result until his toast.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Frank is tethered on the lighting gantry through the service window; a staff rigger only lowers him after the cover was sealed, and the controls are at ground level.

Mona Lott

Innocent Coming Clean

I leaked the talks and will admit that to the partners. I translated the agreement accurately. The original's RECEIVED embossing preceded my sole service visit, and that seal did not start operating until after the glass cover closed. My amendment could change the loan's meaning. It could not reach the interior of the guarded glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and hid it in the loan-handling cloth. While the glass was uncovered I put the amendment beside Grant's glass and coated the glass. The sealed glass cover protected what I had done until the pour. I wanted restitution and committed murder instead. The cause cannot absolve the person who chose that act.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Elon Mosaic

Innocent Coming Clean

I was the anonymous auction buyer. I concealed that interest while presenting myself as a disinterested donor, and I will disclose it. I waited for the original's RECEIVED embossing before my sole service visit. The seal first operated after the glass cover closed. My proposal concerned an installation; that delivery could not contaminate the covered glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the preparation walkthrough and hid it in my screen cloth. While the glass was uncovered I delivered the working carbon of my installation proposal to Grant and coated his glass beside the folded price page. Staff sealed the glass cover and later poured the punch. He had threatened my board appointment over the auction purchase. I wanted him out of my way, and I killed him. My corrected estimate did not correct what I did.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Anya Tique

Innocent Coming Clean

I accepted the incomplete file in 1989 and will help reopen the accession review. Tonight my first entry was 6:30, after cyanide had been removed and the room locked. The staff guest book records that arrival. I failed the collection decades ago. I did not steal the solution or poison its donor tonight.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and concealed it in the letter's linen sleeve. While the glass was uncovered I approached Grant with the 1989 correspondence and coated his glass. The promise on that paper had haunted the museum for decades. I murdered the man who made it, then tried to let the old scandal explain away my presence at his glass.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Anya first enters at 6:30, after reference access ends; the staffed check-in guest book is an actual entry record rather than a retrospective autograph.

Saul D. Bid

Innocent Coming Clean

The subsidiary concealed the client's identity, and I should have disclosed the conflict. Grant knew the actual fee. My sole service visit ended while the glass remained in intact sealed blue wrapping under the steward's watch. I negotiated over a package, not an accessible glass. Discretion is costly enough without calling it murder.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the tour after the count and hid it in the presentation cloth. While the glass was uncovered I laid the statement beside Grant's glass and coated its interior. The glass cover sealed my work until staff poured. He intended to auction my reputation for the price of a waived fee. I killed him, and there is no respectable commission on that transaction.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Elle Loominate

Innocent Coming Clean

The incomplete papers were my mistake. I have now made the loan explicit, and the textile will return to my family. My only preparation contact was across the west return barrier. I never reached the source shelves. Grant could dispute the loan's wording; that did not put cyanide in my hands.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide after joining the walkthrough and carried it in the loan sleeve. While the glass was uncovered I spread the amendment beside Grant's glass and applied the solution inside the glass. He treated my refusal as bargaining. I answered with murder. Returning the textile cannot undo the act I chose in its name.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete single preparation contact stays outside the fixed west return barrier; only east visitor access reaches the sole source. No revisit or transfer is left unaccounted for.

Reed DeLabel

Innocent Coming Clean

I concealed the correction that would embarrass Art, because I feared for my fellowship. The complete transcription will now go to both of them. My entire preparation visit stayed at the west return counter, outside the source barrier. My dishonesty concerned a sentence. It did not give me access to the bottle.

Murderer Coming Clean

I left the archive before the walkthrough, removed cyanide from the preparation room, and carried it in my handling cloth. While the glass was uncovered the transcription gave me a reason to approach Grant's glass. I coated the inside while he read the threat back to me. I preserved the disputed document and killed the man threatening my fellowship.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete single preparation contact stays outside the fixed west return barrier; only east visitor access reaches the sole source. No revisit or transfer is left unaccounted for.

Al Baster

Innocent Coming Clean

I changed the support and owe the museum the accurate drawing. I remained holding the plaster mold with both hands throughout the uncovered-glass period while the assistant clamped it. I couldn't leave for Grant's glass. The replica dispute made me furious. Fury does not explain away unsafe fabrication, and I will fix the part I actually made.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and concealed it in the polishing rag. I finished the mold before service, then carried the drawing to Grant while the glass was uncovered and coated his glass. The staff poured into the glass I had prepared. He threatened to replace my work. I murdered him instead of making him pay for it.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Al holds a failing plaster mold with both hands continuously across the service window while a staff assistant clamps its support; releasing it would collapse the ongoing work.

Ella Gance

Innocent Coming Clean

I sold the donation and concealed the loss. I will tell the institution expecting it and offer repayment. Tonight I first entered at 6:32, after the cyanide cupboard was locked. My later silk wrapping and visit to the glass concerned the replacement offer. I was trying to repair a promise, however badly.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and carried it in the silk wrapping. While the glass was uncovered I placed my replacement offer beside Grant's glass and applied the solution inside. The glass cover sealed it until service. I traded a financial embarrassment for a murder, then let the room believe the embarrassment explained everything I had done.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Ella's staffed entrance record marks her first arrival at 6:32, after the preparation room was locked; the branch excludes an earlier entry.

Drew Conclusions

Innocent Coming Clean

The anonymous newsletter was mine, including the passage I now regret. I intended to correct it without writing Grant an advertisement. My sole approach to his service station ended with the glass still in intact blue plastic wrapping under the steward's watch. I supplied a nasty sentence. I did not have access to the glass's inside.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the preparation walkthrough and hid it in the cloth wrapped around my pencils. While the glass was uncovered I brought Grant the revised newsletter page and coated the inside of his glass while he read. The staff sealed the glass cover and later poured a clean drink into the glass I had poisoned. He wanted me to turn a cruel joke into his advertisement. I answered with murder. That was my decision, and the joke excuses none of it.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Brie DeVivre

Innocent Coming Clean

My invoice included changes Grant refused to recognize. I concealed how badly his promises had affected the rest of my work. My sole service-station visit ended while his glass remained in intact sealed blue wrapping. I served the same punch recipe elsewhere. The guarded interior, not my disputed invoice, decides whether that visit could deliver cyanide.

Murderer Coming Clean

I checked the preparation supplies during the walkthrough and took cyanide. While the glass was uncovered I used Grant's private linen to put it inside his glass. I left the shared punch untouched and let the staff seal the glass cover and pour. He had made an entire service revolve around one glass. I used his demand to kill him, then hid behind my unpaid invoice.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Cary Crates

Innocent Coming Clean

I concealed the frame crack and will document the repair. The lift trapped me between floors throughout the uncovered-glass period, until the mechanic released its brake. I couldn't reach the glass. Grant threatened my job over a repairable mistake. It was still my mistake, and his death does not remove the obligation to put it right.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide on the walkthrough and hid it in the padded cloth. The lift trip ended before service. While the glass was uncovered I brought the repair estimate to Grant and coated his glass with that cloth. I returned to work while staff sealed and poured. He threatened my livelihood, and I made a deliberate killing look like somebody else's service failure.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Cary is trapped in the interlocked freight lift between floors across the service window; staff release the brake only after the cover was sealed. No exit or Salon route exists from the stranded cabin.

Anne E. Dote

Innocent Coming Clean

I used museum materials for a petition without permission. I will answer for that; I will also keep asking who the museum serves. My only preparation visit was a return-counter exchange outside the barrier. I could collect a loan tag there, not the sample on the visitor-side shelves. Grant's death will not restore the budget by itself.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and hid it in the puppet's cleaning cloth. While the glass was uncovered I brought Grant the petition and applied the solution inside his glass while spreading the signatures. I told myself I was defending a program. I was killing a person, and the children I invoked would recognize the difference.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete single preparation contact stays outside the fixed west return barrier; only east visitor access reaches the sole source. No revisit or transfer is left unaccounted for.

Faye Stop

Innocent Coming Clean

I kept the separate print after promising to delete the camera image. That evasion was deliberate. The print deserves an explanation, not another deletion. My preparation contact was entirely outside the west return barrier. I had no access to the source shelves. Preserving evidence was my secret; poisoning the glass was not.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide on the walkthrough and carried it in my lens cloth. While the glass was uncovered I laid the backup beside Grant's glass and applied the solution inside the glass. The sealed glass cover and later pour completed the sequence. I kept an image of his secret and created a death of my own. The photograph did not force my hand.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete single preparation contact stays outside the fixed west return barrier; only east visitor access reaches the sole source. No revisit or transfer is left unaccounted for.

Robin Banks

Innocent Coming Clean

The protest stickers were mine. I distributed them without permission and will defend their questions. My sole approach to the private service station ended with the glass still in intact blue plastic wrapping under the steward's watch. My criticism reached Grant. The sealed interior did not become accessible to me.

Murderer Coming Clean

I entered early, took cyanide during the walkthrough, and hid it in my protective cloth. While the glass was uncovered I brought Grant the brochure and coated his glass. I returned to the room while staff sealed and poured. I used a restitution campaign to justify murder to myself. Nobody represented by that collection authorized what I did.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The complete sole service approach ends while the same glass remains inside intact sealed blue wrapping under staff watch. Its interior is inaccessible; later reacquisition is excluded by the spoken complete account.

Penny Pincher

Innocent Coming Clean

The letters disclose a disputed sale and my family's part in it. I withheld some of them because I wanted a cleaner family story. I waited for the cover sheet's RECEIVED embossing before my only service visit. That seal began after the glass cover closed. Concealing an uncomfortable history did not give that visit access to the glass's interior.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the tour and concealed it in the letters' handling cloth. I brought the correspondence to Grant while the glass was uncovered and coated his glass. The glass cover sealed it until the pour. I killed him over a family claim and then hid behind letters that deserved a better advocate.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Justin Tyme

Innocent Coming Clean

I printed Grant's old story too readily. The parcel record corrects it, and I will publish the correction under my own name. I waited for the original's RECEIVED embossing before my only service visit. That seal was first used after the glass cover closed. My credulity was real. That delivery did not give me access to an open glass.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the preparation walkthrough and put it on the rag in my archive folder. While the glass was uncovered I brought Grant the parcel print and wiped the solution inside his glass while spreading the paper beside it. He postponed my correction until after his toast. I made sure he would never deliver the story he planned. I turned a historical grievance into murder.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

The original was embossed before the complete sole service approach. The RECEIVED seal was first activated after the glass cover closed. Thus the document sequence places the only approach after interior access ended.

Minnie Malist

Innocent Coming Clean

I changed the approved cue and will document it. During the glass window I held the spring-return test lever and answered the electrician throughout the uncovered-glass period. I couldn't leave for the Salon. The flickers came from my disputed design choice, not a signal to a murderer. We needed fewer effects and a better approval process.

Murderer Coming Clean

I took cyanide during the walkthrough and hid it in the label cloth. I left the lighting sequence on automatic, then brought Grant the cue sheet while the glass was uncovered and coated his glass. The lights could continue without me. Staff sealed and poured into the poisoned glass. I made his final spectacle a murder and cannot call that good design.

Why the innocent account excludes murder

Minnie holds a spring-return lighting test lever continuously through the service window while the staff electrician calls live changes; releasing it stops the test.
