

Morgan Slate

Art Critic & Cultural Podcaster / Age 30

Morgan can make a museum director nervous with a headline and an artist furious with a compliment. Their reviews are incisive, funny, and widely read; their podcast is where the art world goes to hear itself discussed by someone who may not be impressed.

- Friendly rival of Nadia Quill.
- Has reviewed Julian Brush, Imogen Muse, Malcolm Carrara, and Lola Loom.
- Theo Glass remembers an especially brutal line about his collection.

ACTING TIPS

Dry, perceptive, skeptical, socially nimble. Deliver observations as if they occurred to you three minutes before everyone else.

COSTUME SUGGESTIONS

Optional inspiration: Smart, artsy formalwear: black with one eccentric element, distinctive glasses, scarf, vintage jacket, notebook. Gender presentation entirely flexible.